COUCH AND CANVAS HAMMOCKS

We manufacture every practical description of awning known, from the earliest to the most modern. In this circular will be found illustrations of several of the most popular styles, from among which almost any kind of a front may be suited exactly. If none of these should be adapted to your needs, we will be glad to offer suggestions for a special job.

HETTRICK BELT CHAIN ROLLER AWNING, WITH SHED AND BACKBOARD

Showing use of slide-rod frame, when awning is fastened below prism lights

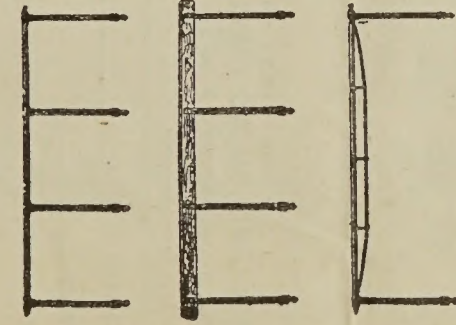

We make a Specialty of Residence Awnings and carry an exclusive line of patterns for this work

FRAMES, FIXTURES, ETC. STORE AWNING FRAMES

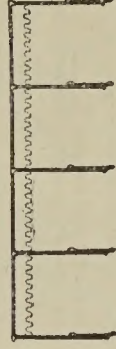

Some one of these three styles of Store Awning Frames (with the Slide Rod Attachments shown opposite when necessary) will be found adapted to almost any kind of a front.

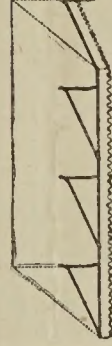

The number of arms or projecting rods is, of course, regulated by the width of the front and by the number of columns to which they may be attached.

We shall be glad to make suggestions on special jobs when desired.

SHOWING USE OF SLIDE ROD ATTACHMENTS

When the projection of an awning exceeds the height by one foot or more, it is customary to use slide rods, (instead of ordinary hinges,) to allow the arms to drop down the columns when the awning is folded.

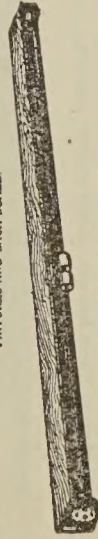

When the awning is in use the arms are secured in position at the tops of the slide rods as shown in the cut, to clear the heads of passers-by.

WINDOW AWNINGS

Square Top. Semi-circle. Round Corners. Segment. Oval.

For Square Top Windows, measure from 1 to 2, 3 to 4.
For Semi-circle Windows, measure from 1 to 2, 3 to 4, 2 to 5.
For Round Corner Windows, measure from 1 to 2, 3 to 4, 5 to 6.
For Segment and Oval Windows, measure from 1 to 2, 3 to 4, 2 to 5.

The figures 3 to 4 in the above diagrams represent in every instance the places on the window casings where the frame of the awning extends out from the window when the awning is in use. The scooped curtain will drop 12 inches below this point.

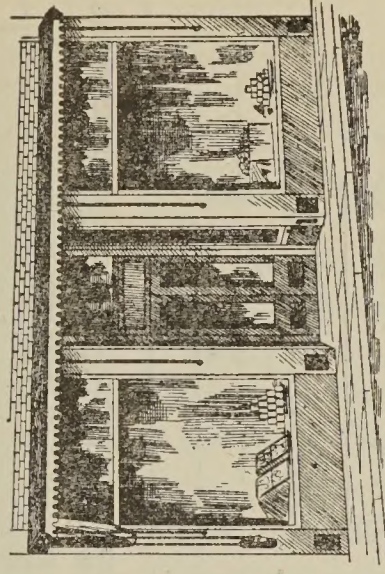

When re-covers only are wanted, give the extension, and be sure to draw diagrams of the awnings so that we can understand the shape and size of the frames, but do not diagram the frames on the order.

PORCH CURTAINS

Unless otherwise ordered, these curtains are always made with a roller at the bottom, just above the scooped edge and there concealed in a hem.

The top of the curtain is fastened on the inside of the porch to the ceiling or other even surface in such a manner that when the curtain is down it will not interfere with the bracket work or other projections.

By fastening the ends of the ropes at the top, and just outside the curtain, then passing them underneath the roller at the bottom, and again up to the top on the inside, where they are led through pulleys, the curtain is made to roll upward from the bottom and around the roller.
